

The press review eurotopics.net follows key debates in the European media and translates the most relevant comments into five languages (English, German, French, Russian, Turkish). It's an initiative of Germany's Federal Agency for Civic Education produced by the Berlin-based journalist network n-ost.

We're a dedicated team of debate junkies and, for the project eurotopics.net, we're looking for a

Social Media Editor (English channels)

who is:

- very active on social media (Twitter, Facebook & Instagram)
- qualified to be a social media editor (academic studies, job experience)
- interested in all kinds of political, economic and social topics across Europe
- experienced with relevant photo, video and audio software, and
- has native-level English skills (good command of German is an asset).

Does this sound like you? Great! Here are some of the things you'll do while you're with us:

- share our topics on Twitter & Facebook by drafting engaging posts and tweets
- collaborate in the conceptual development of channels on Instagram and Telegram
- produce informative and moving sharepics
- manage our community on the social networks and get in touch with influencers
- analyse user behaviour

You'll work part-time from Monday to Friday (3 hours per day, around noon) from anywhere in Europe. You should be prepared to start by 15 February 2022.

Please send your CV and motivation letter to application@n-ost.org (as one pdf) by 16 January 2022. If you have any questions please contact Judith Fiebelkorn: +49 (0) 30-259 32 83-11.

n-ost is an international network linking journalists and media initiatives from the EU, Eastern Europe and neighbouring countries. As a media NGO we campaign for independent foreign reporting, media pluralism and access to information. Our network provides training and supports journalistic research with a cross-border approach and media monitoring.
